Lucy Lapin, concerned mother (and rabbit!) of the forest community, is called to testify against the big, bad wolf.

Madame Lapin is convinced that she witnessed the murders of Little Red Riding Hood and her grandmother. Are Lucy's preconceived notions of wolves clouding her ability to give an unbiased testimony? Or are Lucy's fears plausible and justifiable? You make the final verdict!

Le Témoignage du Bûcheron

THE ACTORS ~

Avocate - Megan Zingaretti

Le Loup - Chloe-Lynn Mykytyn

Le Petit Chaperon Rouge - Casey Hess

Le Bûcheron - Melanie Harker

Le Juge - Agatha Buisson

In the ongoing search for the culprit that nabbed or killed Le Petit Chaperon Rouge and her dear old grandmother, we hear the testimony of Le Bûcheron (the woodcutter). By his own account a respectable and honorable man of society with a wife and family, Le Bûcheron seems perplexed to be considered a suspect in this heinous crime. Le Bûcheron tells his side of the story to the jury in descriptive detail.

But testifying in his own defense requires revealing not only a vegetarian wolf and the mysterious disappearance of Grandmother, but also the secret of the woodcutter's long-lost daughter. With his family life threatened, the woodcutter also has a motive...

LE TÉMOIGNAGE DU LOUP

THE ACTORS ~

Le Loup - Lauren Van Derzee

Marie Loup (Wolf's Daughter) - Erika Lutz

Le Petit Chaperon Rouge - Jess Maillie

Grand-mere - Lisa Kimball

The wolf testifies in his own defense as a good father telling us of the day when Little Red Riding Hood and Grandmother died. The wolf is a vegetarian, and so, cannot imagine eating a young girl. We also meet Marie-Loup, the wolf's sweet daughter. Marie-Loup cannot stand Little Red Riding Hood, who is a miserable, spoiled brat. The wolf does not feel sorry for the young victim either.
