How much was spent on debt service and utilities?

Published figure for undergraduate tuition Average price students actually paid

Concerns

- Reduced net revenue
- Building an inclusive environment
- Shrinking traditional student base- and increasing in the “non traditional student base”

Fallout from high school prep and the pandemic

- 1.2m students dropped out- there are signs that it is increasing
- Higher rates of absenteeism –only about half of K12 was logging into zoom
- Online education disproportionately affects first generation and students of color
- In general more students are behind due to online K12 classes (studies of virtual charter schools have found that their students have consistently lower outcomes than in-person schools, even when controlling for the reasons students enrolled online).
- More seniors are not planning to attend college- see it as a luxury

Academic Charge

- What should our academic structure look like in this changing landscape?
- How do we adjust our present programs, design new programs that play to our strengths/adjacencies highlight an intensifying interdisciplinary approaches for our new programs?
- How can we leverage technology/our lessons from hybrid teaching to meet this new challenge?

Administrative Charge

- Advise how our administrative structure should look in this changing landscape.
- Advise on the mechanism we should adopt to design and adjust our programs to our strengths, and develop adjacencies that highlight the cross-functional approach to our programs and services.
- Advise how to leverage technology based on our lessons throughout the pandemic.

Administrative Timeline

*The academic timeline will develop recommendations through April 2021 to allow time to navigate faculty governance requirements.
